Advances in GI and Hepatology: Live Endoscopy and More

PRESENTED BY THE DIGESTIVE DISEASE INSTITUTE AT VIRGINIA MASON

This day-long program offers live case demonstrations, a series of engaging lectures, and hands-on stations focused on the management of a wide range of gastroenterological disorders. In addition to interacting with clinicians during advanced therapeutic procedures in up-close detail on the large screen, this course will address indications, best practices, and proper use of novel treatments for hepatitis C, inflammatory bowel disease, sedation during colonoscopy and EGD, fatty liver disease, esophagitis, achalasia, Barrett's esophagus and obesity. A special break-out session for nurses focuses on the nursing role in therapeutic endoscopy and GI emergencies.

Designed for gastroenterologists, internists, primary care providers, and GI nurses, this course will examine new developments in gastroenterology and hepatology, specifically brand new information and cutting-edge techniques that busy clinicians can apply in their practices every day.

Teaching methods include observation of live therapeutic procedures, lectures, case discussion and hands-on practice.

TARGET AUDIENCE:

This course is appropriate for gastroenterologists, internists, primary care providers, GI fellows, residents, GI nurses and general, hepatobiliary, and esophageal surgeons who wish to update their knowledge and become familiar with new information and advanced therapeutic techniques.

OBJECTIVES:

At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be able to:

- Describe the role of EUS-FNA in distal and proximal obstruction
- Apply therapeutic drug monitoring to optimize biopharmaceutical management of IBD
- Discuss HCV epidemiology and screening recommendations
- Summarize endoscopic options for treatment of obesity
- Compare noninvasive methods to diagnose fatty liver disease
- Describe clinical presentations, natural history, relationship to food, and treatment options of eosinophilic esophagitis
- Review different treatment approaches for achalasia and outline advantages of each
- Review the effectiveness, efficiency, cost, safety and satisfaction data for Nurse Administered Propofol Continuous Infusion Sedation (NAPCIS)
- Utilize the new guidelines for management of Barrett's esophagus

RN Afternoon Program

- Identify common tools for GI bleed treatment and foreign body retrieval
- Discuss nursing care in the context of stone management, sphincterotomy, and stents/stent placement
- Outline contrast use and pitfalls in GI procedures
- Identify ideal positioning for EGD, colonoscopy, ERCP, EUS procedures for both sedated and anesthetized patients
